

decision. Put that in your pipe and smoke it (pointing to the Republican side).

Mr. Milligan—If the vote sustains, then the vote also overrules, doesn't it? Nobody could answer the interrogatory.

Mr. Maxwell made a further and clear explanation of the situation.

The Mayor—After listening to your explanation I am inclined to agree with you.

This change of front took the Democrats by surprise, and Mr. Gruse and others tried to again convince the mayor that he was originally right.

Mr. Irwin—I call for nominations for gas board trustees.

The mayor—Nominations are in order.

This knocked out the Republicans' stand for a vote on market master again. An attempt was made to bring up the latter matter, but without success.

Mr. Irwin, in a clever speech, placed Mr. Edward M. Holliday in nomination. Mr. Kenney nominated one of the present incumbents, Mr. H. H. Dunlevy.

Mr. Filan placed P. J. Gilligan in nomination; Mr. O'Malley named John Zarnitz, of the Sixth ward, and the following nominations were made: J. A. Jefferson, Godfrey Schul and E. Buckman.

At this juncture Mr. Richards arose and addressed the joint session.

Mr. Richards—If you will permit me, I would like to offer for consideration a paper bearing on the subject in hand, that of the election of gas trustees.

Mr. Irwin—What is the title and nature of the paper?

Mr. Richards—You will soon see the nature of the paper, sir, more perhaps than agreeable. I will read with your permission.

We, the Democratic members of the first and second branches of council in caucus assembled, hereby bind ourselves to the following agreement, and to fulfill the pledges therein contained in consideration of the election of a Democrat president of the second branch of council with the assistance of the Republican members of said branch in the person of Mr. John Waterhouse.

The Democratic members of the first and second branches of council agree that the Republican members shall have an equal representation with the Democrats upon all standing committees, and furthermore the Republicans shall select at least one Republican upon each of the following boards: water board and board of gas trustees; and further they shall select a Republican chairman of the following committees: on accounts, finance, lights, real estate, cemeteries, health, ordinances, streets, alleys and grades, water works and board of equalization and appeals.

And further they shall select two (2) Republican representatives upon the committee on committees from the second branch of council. The said committee on committees shall consist of eight members, selected four from the first branch and four from the second branch of council.

ALEX. BROOK, Chairman.
J. P. MAXWELL, Chairman.

I desire to make a motion in connection with this matter. No Republican has as yet been heard. It is not the intention of the Democrats to give the Republicans, as brought out in this paper, a man of their own choice. Now I move that the election of gas trustees be taken up separately, one at a time.

Then followed the nomination of two Republicans; Mr. Richards presented the name of E. Buckman, of the Second ward; Mr. Wheat named Godfrey Schul, of the Eighth ward. J. A. Jefferson, Republican, was named by Mr. P. F. Farrell.

Mr. Richards said the agreement he held in his hand was sufficient cause for voting for one member at a time.

Mr. Gruse said he was a member of council when the paper in question was drawn up. The situation, then, he said, was greatly different from what it now is. He acknowledged the authenticity of the paper read by Mr. Richards. The Republicans, he claimed, assisted in breaking the agreement, and that the Democrats can not be held to it.

Mr. Maxwell could not understand the system of reasoning by which he reached his conclusion.

Mr. Gruse—Mr. Maxwell may talk as he pleases about honor and dishonor; he helped to bring about the breaking of the agreement.

Mr. Richards then followed with a humorous speech in which he roasted the Democrats for breaking pledges as shown in the agreement he had read.

Mr. Dobbins—On this question, in the face of the situation, I am, I think, entitled to a vote. The other side is about to break a contract that relieves me of the pair.

Mr. Brock followed with a long-winded harangue. He finally proposed on behalf of the Democratic members of council that the Republicans select one man and the Democrats would support him.

Mr. Maxwell—I raise a point of order; the question is to select one member of the gas board at a time.

Mr. Brock—I will get to the question; I hope after my explanation that the motion will be withdrawn; then the Democrats will vote for any man that the Republicans want.

At this point Mr. Wheat approached Mr. Brock and asked him as to the validity of the paper, which was signed by him as chairman of the Democratic caucus. The gentleman did not deny its authenticity.

A vote was then taken on the motion. Ayes and noes were called, and it resulted in a victory for the Republicans. Mr. Dobbins voted and his vote was objected to by Mr. Irwin.

Mr. Filan—It is not so very long ago when Mr. Brock was paired, and voted nevertheless to postpone the election of the water board for two years, which was equivalent to an election. [Republican applause.]

The vote was as follows: First branch, ayes 7, noes 8; Second branch, ayes 15, noes 13; total, 22 ayes, 21 noes.

The gentlemen who had been previously named for gas trustees were again nominated. A ballot was taken and resulted in a tie, Mr. Dobbins not voting; Jefferson, 21; Buckman, 21.

Mr. Richards arose and asked for information. In his opinion, the mayor should in this case cast the deciding vote.

Mr. Gruse took an opposite view of the case. He claimed that as the mayor is not a member of council he can not cast a vote.

Mr. Richards—I claim the mayor has the right to decide.

There was considerable further discussion between Messrs. Gruse and Richards, that finally grew somewhat personal.

The Mayor—If I saw a precedent I would not object to cast the deciding vote. I have looked carefully into the matter and can see no precedent. [Democratic applause.]

Mr. Killen—I move that a ballot be taken on election of gas trustees.

The motion prevailed, a vote was taken and resulted in another tie—21 to 21.

After the ballot a long recess was taken, during which there was lots of lobbying, but without result.

After a while the roll was called, after which Mr. Wheat moved that the election of gas trustees be temporarily postponed and that the election of market master be taken up. The mayor seemed to think the motion a proper one.

Mr. Gruse—Your former ruling does not agree with your present position.

The Mayor—The public good seems to demand under the circumstances that the election of market master be taken up now.

Mr. Richards offered a substitute to the motion to the effect that the election of gas trustees be deferred until two ballots be taken on election of market master. The vote on the motion was the same old tie, 21—21.

Mr. Dobbins—I think under the circumstances you have a perfect right to a vote here.

Mr. Wheat spoke on the subject and gave authorities to show that the mayor would be acting within his authority by casting the deciding vote.

The Mayor—I cannot agree to decide the ballot.

Another ballot was taken on gas trustees and resulted in no choice; Gilligan 1, Buckman 20, Jefferson 21.

Another long recess was taken and at 11:15 the roll was called. There were a number of paired absentees.

At 11:20 Mr. Gruse asked that the Democratic members be allowed to retire to the committee room, and they were allowed. They retired at 11:21, and returned at 11:26, each man wiping his mouth and smoking a fresh cigar.

At 11:30 the roll was called. Mr. Paull was the only absentee. Then a ballot—21 to 21.

On the next ballot Filan voted for Buckman, the other Democrats for Holliday, and two or three Republicans scattered, but all united on Mr. Schul before the result was announced.

On the next three votes were given Gilligan, and Milligan had to pronounce his name twice, as it was thought he was voting for himself.

The next time Mr. Horstmann voted for Dave Brooks. Mr. Burke voted for M. K. Wolff. Mr. Filan voted for Holliday.

At midnight signs of fatigue and sleepiness began to appear. "Markets" Kreiter was the first to yield himself to the arms of Morpheus. With his feet on the desk in front he remained utterly oblivious of his surroundings until 1 o'clock, when another ballot was taken. The lobby, that earlier in the evening was very numerous, at midnight dwindled down to a score or two, whose curiosity had still not been satisfied.

Councilman, forgoing parties composed invariably of equal numbers from each side of the chamber at intervals made raids on neighboring saloons and restaurants, with unvarying success.

Things last assumed a very informal aspect. Councilmen of usual dignified mien, laughed, chatted and exchanged stale jokes. Groups formed and talked over the respective merits of the two parties, and occasionally the members got pretty hot.

At 1:07 o'clock this morning the roll was again called. Dobbins and Paull were the first branch absentees, and Knoke and O'Malley of the second.

The ballot resulted as follows: Buckman, 16; Holliday, 19; Dunlevy, 2; Gilligan, 1; Zarnitz, 2.

After the ballot Mr. Kenney spoke in favor of adjournment and moved for adjournment.

Mr. Maxwell said the proposition to adjourn came with poor grace from the Democratic side when it was remembered that earlier in the evening the Democrats had been so firm for doing nothing, but elect gas trustees. A motion was made to table the motion for adjournment. The vote was pretty close on the motion to table, and Mr. Milligan in a stage whisper that could be heard all over the room said, "the motion is carried." The mayor repeated, "the motion is carried."

An effort was made to have Zulauf sing, but the Eighth ward statesman refused emphatically to repeat his performance of last winter, when he sang "Our Jack's Come Home To-day."

At 1:50 o'clock, to "relieve the pressure on the gas board," Mr. Wheat turned down the gas in the second branch chamber.

More efforts were made to have Charley Zulauf sing, but without avail.

At exactly 1:56 a. m. Dr. Caddle, who was snoozing in his chair, fell over on the floor, the chair on top of him. "Doc" raised himself on his elbow, gazed around in a stupefied way, and when the gang let loose a yell, realized where he was and got up.

Ed Wheat was the life of the gathering. He was never still, but always hunting up some new scheme to torment his fellow "statesmen."

His Honor, the mayor, went to one of the committee rooms for refreshment. To the surprise of the mayor he ran into a Democratic caucus. Needless to state, he didn't stay.

At 2 o'clock the roll had not been called again. Most of the Democrats were in one of the committee rooms, caucusing.

At 2:30 o'clock the situation was unchanged, except that five members on each side had paired, and gone home. About this time a scheme of the Democrats was discovered by their opponents. The well-known Democratic desire was that the quorum of the joint session be broken so that matters could drift along for awhile. The idea was to have Democratic members pair with Republicans until the quorum could be broken. The scheme narrowly escaped being successful. The Republicans got onto the scheme before it was too late, however, and refused to pair. Much credit is due the watchfulness of the Republican leaders who throughout the session handled their side with skill and foresight.

At 2:45 o'clock there was nothing new in the situation.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Strangers in the City and Wheeling Folks Abroad.

Mr. P. B. Dobbins got home yesterday from Hamilton, Ohio, where he was called on account of the death of his brother.

Mr. Harry Simsel, of Oakland, Md., is visiting his father-in-law, Judge Kennedy, on Thirteenth street. Mrs. Simsel has been here for some time.

W. J. Hamilton and Elwood Hughes, delegates to the meeting of the National Veterans' Association to be held at Cincinnati, left yesterday over the Baltimore & Ohio.

Charles Schmidt and family, of Wheeling, have returned home after a short visit at the home of Francis Schmidt, South Strabane township.—Washington, Pa., Observer.

Miss Emelia Eisenberg, of Barnsville, O., and Mr. Joseph May, of May Bros., of Steubenville, O., will be married at the Wheeling Club rooms this evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Bonheim.

The many friends of Mrs. A. C. Miller and of her late husband will extend to her the sincerest sympathy on the death of her youngest child, Mary, aged eight months. The bereavement is particularly sad.

M. Coyle, one of the best known veteran showmen on the road, is in the city ahead of the big Barum & Bailey circus, which shows here October 18. He says the show is doing well this season, and he thinks it is worthy of the success it is meeting.

WORLD'S FAIR TOURISTS.

People Coming from and Going to the Big Exhibition.

Dr. J. C. Hupp, wife and daughter, returned yesterday.

S. G. Naylor and wife, of the Island, have returned from Chicago.

John Burns left yesterday afternoon. A party of friends and relatives went to the Baltimore & Ohio station to see him off. He left word to have the gas board election postponed for ten days, so that he could be present.

Among those who left on the Baltimore & Ohio at 3:50 yesterday afternoon to help swell the big crush in Chicago were Miss Hattie McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Devries, Dr. Bolville, Harry Ott, Mrs. T. H. Little and Miss Jennie Campbell.

New York Theatre Company.

The always welcome and popular New York Theatre Company presented to another very large and well pleased audience last night, at the Grand Opera House, Mark Twain's comedy, "Tom Sawyer," in a very artistic and superior manner. Every part was well played, the orchestral selections excellent, the stage settings new and appropriate, the singing and dancing specialties heartily applauded, encore after encore being demanded by the delighted audience. Take it all in all, the New York Theatre Company, band and orchestra is a meritorious organization, as the musicians are all first class, and the "stage folks" have all been seen here before with successful attractions. To-night they present a new thrilling five act sensational drama, entitled, "The Bottle of Life," and hope to see another crowded house, as they honestly deserve it.

Stomach, sweet sleep, good appetite, healthy digestion, and best of all, pure blood, are given by Hood's Sarsaparilla.
